

THE ARKANSAS Gazette, which hadn't one word to say editorially in behalf of the 1951 state sales tax when it was proposed and enacted a decade and a half ago went to great lengths Sunday to prepare the people of Arkansas for an increase in the sales tax to 3 per cent.

Pointing out that the sales tax hike would yield 12 million of the 16 1/2 million additional revenue the state is estimated to need, the Gazette declared:

"This is not a good tax program. It would further unbalance an already unbalanced state tax structure. The only thing that can be said for it is that it is expedient. It would produce the necessary money, it would not encounter the constitutional obstacles that stand in the way of other tax measures, and it has at least an outside chance of being politically acceptable to some of those interests which have killed off alternative revenue proposals."

Now I'll pursue the portion of the Gazette statement which I've set in boldface type.

The support of the public schools is an obligation of all the people and their property and wealth. Taxes may strike directly at property or wealth, or they may strike at people. Taxes against real estate, personal belongings, and income, are taxes on wealth — but the sales tax is a levy upon people.

The Star helped promote editorially the original 2 per cent state sales tax back in the 1930s. It was a tax upon people, of course. But property was on the lowest limb within the money of man. Incomes were shrunken, real estate was almost worthless, and ad valorem taxes were in wholesale default. There was no alternative but the sales tax — a direct levy in the name of the public schools against the food people eat and the clothes they wear.

But all this was a decade and a half ago.

Today, real estate is at a peak. So is the value of personal property. So is the average of corporate and personal income.

It was the people's turn to help the schools 15 years ago. But now it is wealth's turn — under the ancient rule that help shall be asked of those best able to give it.

However, men of wealth have fluent and powerful voices to speak for them in the councils of state. The Gazette infers that simply because "these interests which have killed off alternative revenue proposals" are wholly selfish in this moment of crisis we shall therefore cruelly the common people by raising the sales tax on food and clothing.

The common people have no one to speak for them.

But they will be heard from on this score — if not in the legislature, then in the courts, and, failing there, then in future elections.

This is the greatest injustice ever proposed to be perpetrated upon the citizens of Arkansas — the biggest double-cross ever charged against representative government in our state.

Texarkana, Feb. 19 — Sheriff W. E. Davis says that George W. Edwards has signed a written statement that he shot and clubbed Weldon George Mallett, 48, and then set fire to Mallett's home.

The two men were neighbors here.

Edwards, 65, and his 67-year-old wife are being held in jail here.

Davis said Edwards admitted he shot Mallett in the back with a shotgun last Thursday. He said Mallett had threatened to kill him.

When Mallett staggered to his home, Edwards followed him and beat him with a stick, then set fire to the house, Davis quoted the statement.

Mrs. Edwards denied her husband's story, and told officers that he "is touched in the head." She said her husband was "too good a man" to have killed Mallett.

Davis said Edwards probably would be charged with first degree murder today.

Railway Union Pleads Guilty, Fined $75,000

Washington, Feb. 19 — (AP) — The Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen pleaded guilty to contempt of court today in the recent "sick" strikes in rail yards and was fined $75,000.

Federal Judge Edward A. Tamm ordered the fine in U. S. district court here immediately after the surprise plea.

He said he was fining the union $50,000 for criminal contempt as a "punitive" penalty for the strikes which occurred despite army operation of the railroads.

The other $25,000 for civil contempt was intended to compensate the government for the cost of bringing the legal proceedings against the union.

Judge Tamm said it would require "a firm of accountants working for years" to determine the actual damages suffered by the public in delayed service, missed connections or the blocking of shipments of munitions and supplies to Korea.

The union already had drawn a $25,000 fine in Chicago for the stoppage there.

Another case is still pending in Cleveland.

U. S. Attorney George Morris Fay advised Judge Tamm that the government would agree to a motion to dismiss the contempt charge against five local lodges and individual officers in the Washington area after the court had imposed sentence on the international union.

Little Rock, Feb. 19 — (AP) — The Arkansas board of apportionment today was granted additional time to decide whether a revision of the state's legislative districts is necessary.

The extension came in a ruling by the Arkansas Supreme court, which turned down a petition filed by Claude Carpenter, Jr., Little Rock, asking that the board be forced to take immediate action.

The court said the board can wait until the official figures of the 1950 federal census are completed or released before reapportioning state senatorial districts and revising membership in the Arkansas house.

Carpenter, a defeated candidate for Pulaski county representative in last summer's Democratic primary, had petitioned the court asking that the board be ordered to take immediate action in the reapportionment matter.

The board, composed of Governor McMath, Secretary of State C. G. Hall, and Atty. Gen. Ike Murry, said it could not go into the matter now because official census figures were not available.

Carpenter said amendment 23 to the state constitution specifies that the reapportionment must be completed before Feb. 1 of the year following a federal census.

But the Supreme court said that authors of the constitutional amendment undoubtedly thought official census figures would be available before Feb. 1. The court said that the date could not apply in this instance because the official count has not been released.

The board must decide whether a state senatorial redistricting is necessary because of the shift in population. Allocation of 25 seats in the Arkansas house also will have to be taken into consideration.

Truman Wants One Man to Handle RFC

Washington, Feb. 19 — (AP) — President Truman today asked congress to put the reconstruction finance corporation under a single administrator.

Under the reorganization plan submitted to the two houses, the government lending agency would continue "as a separate entity in the executive branch of the government."

The President's plan provides for the abolition of the present five-member board of directors whose names he resubmitted to congress only a few days ago.

In his message, the President said the plan gives the single administrator the functions of the present board except for some duties specifically assigned to a new loan policy board and to a board of review.

The loan policy board would be made up of the administrator as chairman, a deputy administrator, provided for under the plan, the secretary of the treasury, the secretary of the commerce "and one other member who shall be designated from time to time by the President from among government officials."

The President's proposal in effect is a capitulation to congressional critics who have been opposing reorganization of the present board members.

Truman Talks Over Dispute With Leaders

Washington, Feb. 19 — (AP) — President Truman talked over with congressional leaders today the crisis growing out of the dispute between his mobilization planners and labor union leaders.

Bear-Baiting Turns Tables on Chinese

Tokyo, Feb. 19 — (AP) — Military bear-baiting has given the Allies a brilliant local victory in Korea.

U. N. forces smashed a Communist attack on the central front, piling up tens of thousands of dead and wounded. The Allied cost was comparatively light.

The Red attack was provoked by American commanders under circumstances similar to the first big battle with the Chinese last November.

It required a delicate and risky military maneuver — setting off an enemy trap without getting caught.

The campaign actually began late in January when Allied forces began gingerly reaching northward of Suwon toward the frozen Han river. This started as a limited offensive which was to be pushed only until enemy opposition stiffened.

It was apparent then, say American officers, that the Communists were building up strength for a new thrust.

As the U. N. offensive ground forward, the resistance continued to be relatively light in the west. The Han river was reached. Kimp'o airfield and Yongdungpo on the edge of Seoul were captured with overage, overweight sergeants. It has too many young privates psychologically unprepared for warfare. They had joined up for security — not to fight.

That army had to be fed into the campaign piecemeal — as fast as it could be carried across the Sea of Japan — against a rough, seasoned foe that in some battles outnumbered it five to one. The enemy held a big edge in tanks as well as manpower. They knew the hilly terrain. And they could take the terrible heat better than the Americans.

For more than ten weeks the Eighth Army had to meet a fresh crisis every day. No wonder they nicknamed it "the shoe string army." It fought battle after battle without having a single platoon in reserve to call up.

Its stubborn holding in the Nak-long line was one of the most brilliant defensive stands in the annals of America. The Pentagon expressed confidence there would be no dunksquere in Korea, but many a commanding officer on the scene felt there would have to be.

The holding of that line was a rare combination of good luck and damn fine skill on the part of General Walker, recalled one staff officer.

"Admirably, we had no right to expect to hold it with the forces we had. It was 100 miles. Our

Trimble Still After Disaster Setup

Washington, Feb. 19 (AP) — Rep. Trimble (D-Ark.) is going to make another attempt to set up machinery for an interim government in event some disaster would wipe out Washington and all top federal officials.

He plans to reintroduce today his proposal to amend the constitution to assure continuance of government should such a disaster occur.

Trimble introduced his proposal last session but it was held up in Judiciary committee.

The idea, Trimble told a reporter, is to set up machinery for use if it should be needed — in event, for instance, an atom bomb might wipe out the President, others in the presidential succession, congress and the supreme court.

The proposal is that if such a catastrophe should strike, the remaining top military leaders would take over immediately. They then would be required to summon a meeting of state governors.

The governors in turn would name a provisional president, set up a new congress and supreme court and then call an election to fill the offices in regular procedure.

"We now have no provision whatsoever for continuing the government in event an atom bomb would wipe out Washington," Trimble said.

"We shouldn't take this chance." Trimble's proposal, if approved by congress, would have to be submitted to the states for ratification since it would amend the constitution.

Shivering Britons Face Rail Strike

London, Feb. 19 — (AP) — Fifty million Britons, already shivering through a winter of too little coal and not enough meat, awoke today to the new crisis of a threatened national railway strike.

The rail walkout began shortly after midnight in Manchester, where 3,500 freight handlers stopped work in protest against a proposed five per cent wage increase they consider to small.

Other rail unions made plans to join them.

Only five freight handlers reported for work in the heavily industrialized Manchester area after the strike decision. Another 11,000 members of the national union of railwaymen — engineers, firemen, signmen, guards and porters — have promised to join the walkout at midnight Tuesday.

With all three major British rail unions seeking a larger wage increase, spokesmen predicted a full strike on the nationalized railways this week unless the government's offer is raised.

Leaders of the three unions met with the government's railway executive today to press their demands.

Other strikes and slowdowns were in prospect. In Sheffield 10,000 voted to start working to the rule today. Amounting to virtual paralysis of rail activities, the men follow to the last letter every obscure regulation in a book of rules grown fat with trivialities during the years.

Allied Troops Smash Heart of Red Attack

Tokyo, Feb. 19 — (AP) — Counter-attacking Americans smashed four miles into the heart of a Korean Red stronghold in east-central Korea today. Hundreds of Communists were killed.

On the central and western fronts, the badly mauled Chinese withdrew from the battlelines.

Lt. Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway said his Allied forces had won a decisive victory on these fronts. But he said the Chinese Reds have enough massed troops to prevent a successful Allied crossing north of parallel 38 if the Reds commit them.

The action on the east-central front was developing at two points north of Chechon, key highway and rail center 20 air miles south-east of Wonju.

A. P. Correspondent Tom Stone reported a tank force, rolling behind heavy artillery barrage and fighter-bomber strikes, punched four miles northward to within one mile of Chechon.

Chechon is 10 miles north of Chechon.

The task force jumped off at 9 a. m. 7 p. m., EST, Sunday and advanced over snow-covered mountain roads Stone said artillery fire alone accounted for more than 200 enemy dead. Small arms skirmishes continued throughout the day along the path of the advance.

A. P. Correspondent Stan Swinton reported that the other American counter-attack recaptured a bitterly-defended mile of a wedge driven by the Reds into the Chechon front last week.

This action covered a two and one-half mile front about six miles due north of Chechon. By nightfall the doughboys had captured the little mountain town of Kuma and driven the Reds from three hills.

Swinton said a furious battle was in progress for a fourth hill. Monday's main action, he added, was fought in a huge natural amphitheater ringed by pine-covered hills.

An estimated 3,000 Korean Reds had made light attacks in the area Sunday, but these were repulsed.

It was quiet between this sector and the West coast. The Reds had pulled back along the 70-mile front after failing — at tremendous cost — to crack the Allied line in a five-day drive.

Ridgway credited a magnificent stand by American and French forces at Chipyong with smashing the Red drive Thursday. He said the Chinese were so hard-hit that his patrols have been unable to make contact for 30 hours.

and we didn't have the men in it set up a continuous line. Some divisions were holding on a 25-to-30-mile front — which is theoretically impossible.

How was it done? By setting up a series of strong points. Whenever enemy pressure became too strong at one point, Gen. Walker would then cut his troops from another sector and shuttle them over to the danger zone. That meant taking terrible gambles.

"To do it Walker had to figure out in advance where the enemy would hit next and in what strength — so we could know what sector of our own line we could risk weakening," said the staff officer.

The situation became so bad that at one time it was estimated a force of 1,000 guerrillas could have filtered down from the hills and wiped out the Eighth Army's own headquarters.

The army was slowly growing in power. But so was the enemy. And in early September, at the peak of the Red drive to smash through to Pusan, Walker had to make his boldest gamble. He had to pull 23,000 Marines out of the line so they could load ships for the Inchon landing.

It was an unbelievable situation," said the staff officer. "We were planning to go on the offensive at the same time it looked like we were going to be forced off the peninsula altogether."

The danger line held off the Reds in a miracle of fighting. As the officer commented, "just how they did it we don't know yet."

Then the Marines and the Seventh Division landed behind the North Koreans and drove on Seoul. That was the picture.

Although the still has as many troops against him as before, Walker immediately attacked. There were only 600 feet of bridging equipment in the entire theater. Walker used 525 feet to cross the Nakdong River and the other strokes.

In less than two weeks the Eighth Army shattered the surprised Red forces and linked up with the American landing force at Inchon. The desperate shooting days of the army were over — but those were the days that forged it into a great army.

But the trap was apparent. The Communists were trying to lead the Allies onward across the Korean peninsula. The aim was to sever the U. N. lines in the west so these forces could be cut off by an encirclement movement sweeping through the key highway town of Wonsu, about 35 miles southeast of Seoul.

All the time Communist pressure was building up in the center where Wonsu.

U. N. commanders decided to set the Chinese trap.

Labor Bows Neck at Plan to Mobilize

By JAMES MARLOW

Washington, Feb. 18 — (AP) — Organized labor, with a stronger voice than it ever had in World War II because it's more united now, has just said "whoa" to the government's mobilization program.

This sudden stiff stand of labor may bring a crisis in the program unless it's smoothed by concessions from the Truman administration. Labor's first emphatic stand was taken early Friday.

On that day the three labor representatives on the wage stabilization board walked out. They didn't like the wage policy decided upon by the other six members — three from business, three representing the public.

And today there was a possibility labor might pull its representatives out of other agencies in the mobilization program unless it gets what it considers a more important say-so in the whole show.

Labor got this new unity, greater than any it has had in years, by setting up a united labor policy committee last Dec. 15. John L. Lewis of the coal miners is not taking part.

But the committee is made up of five top AFL men, five top CIO men, two leaders of International Association of Machinists, and two from the Railway Labor Executives association. Since it was set up, the formerly independent machine have affiliated with the AFL.

Altogether these four big organizations represent perhaps 15,000,000 union workers in factories, ships, railroads. The success of the defense program depends in their cooperation.

The other members of the wage board wanted to let workers have a wage increase no larger than 10 per cent since Jan. 15, 1950. The labor members of the board wanted a figure no less than 12 per cent.

But this conflict over wages was only part of labor's dissatisfaction. After the walkout from the board by the labor members, the labor policy committee issued a statement.

This blasted the way the mobilization program is being handled. It said the program has been put in the hands of a few men from big business who:

"Believe they have a monopoly on experience, good ideas and patriotism. Not a single policy design so far has reflected in any way the recommendations of labor or any other group."

In short, labor was saying: "If there's going to be a mobilization program, we want an important part in it."

Then the labor leaders received a letter from Charles E. Wilson, director of the mobilization and base of the whole program. He said he'd be glad to consider appointment of a labor man as his deputy.

problem after its session, if he did not invite them first.

There was strong sentiment among the ULP members, representing nearly all of the 16,000,000 workers in labor unions except John L. Lewis' miners and four railroad unions, to ditch the whole administration program.

The board's make-up is in question as a result of the labor bolt. It could become a stabilization board of only public members. The formula — which limits wage increases to 10 per cent above January 15, 1950 levels until July 1 — must be acted on by Economic Stabilizer Eric Johnston.

That left the administration two openings for calming labor's ruffled feathers, without the personal intervention of Mr. Truman. These alternatives were:

1. Johnston may soften the wage board's formula to make it more palatable to the labor spokesmen. However, such a way out might prove too costly — the industry or public members might resign from the board with the protest that they couldn't agree to Johnston's decision. While Johnston has authority to fix a formula, he delegated it to the wage board.

2. Mobilization Director Charles E. Wilson already has invited leaders of the ULP to name one of their number for a top-level advisory post at his side. That's what they have been clamoring for. But the manner in which the invitation was made and announced was clouded so that the labor chiefs wanted a good look at the offer before committing themselves.

Earlier Murphy said he had been forced to go on a wild ride Tuesday night after he picked the boy up at a Dallas hotel. He said the boy bought a car for the trip and guns and $500 worth of cowboy clothes for the two of them.

Murphy escaped when the car skidded into a ditch near San Antonio.

"He didn't look like a kid," Murphy said. "He told me he was 24 and he looked it. He told me he had killed three policemen in Chicago and that he knew who pulled the million-dollar Boston robbery. He told me he hated cops. And every time we saw a squad car he would pull out his pistol."

Murphy said a police car followed them once for several miles. "And this kid would just turn and stare at them," Murphy said. "Finally, the patrol car turned off. He told me he wanted to go some place where they'd let him wear his pistols in holsters the way Billy the Kid used to wear them."

Quizz Youth Who Stole $32,000

San Antonio, Tex., Feb. 18 — (AP) — It was the U. S. commissioner's turn today to hear the story of a 16-year-old Chicago youth that he took an aunt's $32,000 savings on a spending spree to the country where then still carry guns.

The aunt, Mrs. Cora Andrews, a Chicago hotel operator, refused to bring charges against the chunky, 185-pound James Walter Miller. However, the FBI said he would be arraigned here today on a federal charge of interstate transportation of stolen property over $5,000.

Miller was picked up Saturday at a dude ranch near Bandera, west of here. He had $29,840 left of his aunt's money after a lavish journey with a Dallas cab driver as his terrified and unwilling guest.

Even without his aunt's money, Chicago police said, Miller has a $3,500 account in a Chicago bank and $35,000 in a trust set up for him by a grandmother.

In Dallas, Cab Driver C. F. Murphy, who spent 60 hours "playing" Charlie McCarthy for a gun-happy kid with $32,000 to "blow," quit his job yesterday.

"I don't want to meet any more passengers like that," said the 28-year-old Purple Heart veteran of World War II, "so I'm going back to painting cars."

Earlier Murphy said he had been forced to go on a wild ride Tuesday night after he picked the boy up at a Dallas hotel. He said the boy bought a car for the trip and guns and $500 worth of cowboy clothes for the two of them.

Murphy escaped when the car skidded into a ditch near San Antonio.

"He didn't look like a kid," Murphy said. "He told me he was 24 and he looked it. He told me he had killed three policemen in Chicago and that he knew who pulled the million-dollar Boston robbery. He told me he hated cops. And every time we saw a squad car he would pull out his pistol."

Murphy said a police car followed them once for several miles. "And this kid would just turn and stare at them," Murphy said. "Finally, the patrol car turned off. He told me he wanted to go some place where they'd let him wear his pistols in holsters the way Billy the Kid used to wear them."

Pharmacy School Fund Held Illegal

Little Rock, Feb. 18 — (AP) — The 1948 legislature's $100,000 appropriation to the College of the Ozarks School of Pharmacy was declared unconstitutional today by the Arkansas Supreme court.

The court said the house of representatives gave the measure only 65 affirmative votes, whereas the 19th amendment to the state constitution, adopted in the 1934 general election, requires a two-thirds majority — or 75 votes — for passage of an appropriation from the general revenue fund.

Act 166 by the 1948 legislature appropriated $50,000 for each year of the 1949-51 biennium to support and assist schools of pharmacy. Ozarks at Clarksville has the only such school in the state.

F. B. Garrett of Little Rock, a taxpayer, filed suit in Pulaski chancery court, challenging State Treasurer J. Vance Clayton and State Auditor J. Oscar Humphrey in issuing and approving warrants drawn on the act.

Garrett said the legislature violated the constitution by appropriating funds for maintenance and operation of a religious school. Ozarks is maintained by the Presbyterian church.

He also challenged the vote by which the Arkansas house approved the measure.

Garrett said that Arkansas' revenue stabilization law setting up the general revenue fund did not provide for an expenditure from that account for educational purposes.

The Supreme court did not answer the question of the state appropriating money for religious schools other than to say that the general assembly has the right "to determine what is a necessary expense" of the state.

However, the court said the legislature erred in appropriating the money from the general revenue fund without a two-thirds majority vote on the bill.

The court said that if the appropriation had been made from a tax source pegged to educational benefits — and "a school of pharmacy" — or from an educational school fund than a simple majority — 51 votes in the house — would have been sufficient.

The opinion came as the College of the Ozarks became involved in an argument with the American Pharmaceutical association over accreditation of the college's school of pharmacy.

The school contends that it has not had sufficient money to maintain standards set by the association.

relative ease. So was the part of the bear.

When the Reds showed some fight in that area, it was not particularly to the defenses originally expected or those that would be expected if they wanted to hold Seoul.

But the trap was apparent. The Communists were trying to lead the Allies onward across the Korean peninsula. The aim was to sever the U. N. lines in the west so these forces could be cut off by an encirclement movement sweeping through the key highway town of Wonsu, about 35 miles southeast of Seoul.

All the time Communist pressure was building up in the center where Wonsu.

U. N. commanders decided to set the Chinese trap.

Gen. Clark Visits Front in Korea

On The Western Front, Korea, Feb. 18 — (UP) — Gen. Mark Clark, chief of U. S. army field forces, saw American troops in action today and said "The United Nations have nothing to worry about."

The Chinese troops are not one fraction as good as our men," he said. "We can whip them every time so long as they do not outnumber us 10 to 100 per man."

"Our men are better fighters and drawing to regroup."

This local victory will not win the campaign. But it helps to lift the Communist losses — and that is the basic strategy now.

Clark, who is responsible for the training of American troops before they get to Korea, saw the GI's dug in within rifle shot of Seoul, which still is in Communist hands.

Here for an extended visit, Clark refused to be shunted into an out-of-the-way observation post and was taken to one directly overlooking the former South Korean capital.

Mother of Seven Children Tells How Lydia Pinkham's Compound Relieves Her Nervous Restless Feelings

due to 'Change of Life'

It is a real pleasure to hear from a wonderful mother such as Mrs. Mary Hardinger of 3136 Kutztown Road, Reading, Pennsylvania. And we consider it an honor to publish her experience with that amazing time-honored medicine—Lydia Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Mrs. Hardinger writes: "At the age of 18 years, my mother got me a bottle of Lydia Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It helped me right away to relieve monthly distress due to functional periodic disturbances. At the same time, my mother was going through change of life and she also took the Compound. I am married and am the mother of seven children and three grandchildren. Now I am going through change of life and am taking your Pinkham's Compound to relieve nervous, restless feelings due to this functional cause."

Regular use of Pinkham's Compound helps build up resistance against such female distress.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Compound is also very effective to relieve hot flushes, nervous irritability and tension—when due to functional change of life. We defy anyone to prove there's any better medicine of this type for this purpose. No other medicine of this type has such a long record of success. Take it faithfully.

Un to Try Again for Peace

United Nations, N. Y., Feb. 19. (AP) — New efforts to negotiate a Korean peace with Communist China get under way at the United Nations today.

Assembly President Nashrolah Entezam of Iran has summoned the so-called good-offices committee to meet in his skyscraper office at headquarters here to make a start on the task.

The group — whose other members are Sven Grafstrom of Sweden and Luis Padilla Nervo of Mexico — was set up by the American resolution branding Red China an aggressor in Korea.

Russian spokesmen said then that the committee's task was hopeless since the labelling of Peiping as an aggressor had slammed the door on peace tries.

Last Friday, however, one section of Prime Minister Stalin's foreign policy statement gave the committee a new, but highly qualified, hope.

This was the so-called "big if" where he indicated the Communist world did not believe the West had finally rejected Peiping's terms. Stalin said:

"If Britain and the United States reject finally the proposal made by the people's government of China, the war can only end in defeat of the interventionists."

Although the U. N. majority is determined to negotiate only on an honorable, no-appeasement basis, the committee will scrutinize the Stalin statement closely to see if it indicates that Peiping may be willing to talk at all.

If so, they hope to be able to arrange consultations seeking a satisfactory solution to the Korean problem.

JERRY SINGER

Jerry Singer, 22 year old veteran who lost a leg at Okinawa is one of the featured dancers with the Horace Heidt show and original youth opportunity program that will appear in Hope March 15, at the indoors coliseum. The famous showman will present his big vaudeville variety revue featuring 20 acts and 60 people in a three hour musical under the sponsorship of the Hope Kiwanis club.

Jerry had been a talented tap dancer before the war, and after having lost a leg at the battle of Okinawa was bound and determined not to give up, but to regain all his former speed and agility. He worked for hours on end and after receiving his new metal leg from the veteran's hospital, and when he felt that he was ready, he went to one of the Horace Heidt auditions and so impressed everyone with his routines and wonderful personality that he was recommended for a final audition before Heidt himself. After seeing him perform, Heidt was sufficiently impressed and offered him a job. Then Jerry had to break down and tell that he had an artificial leg. Horace wouldn't believe this until he was shown, and then was even more enthusiastic. He made Jerry one of the featured acts in his new show.

Audiences all over the country find it hard to believe that this curly-headed young man with the lightning feet and difficult routines does the flying splits! has an artificial leg. He is a dancing example of "you can't be beat if you won't be beat!"

DOROTHY DIX

Children and Divorc

Dear Miss Dix: I think you are very much on the wrong side of the fence when you oppose men and women getting divorces from their congenial mates because there are children. I know whereof I speak because I was brought up by misnamed parents, and I can say that there is nothing more detrimental to a child than to live in a household of discord. No child is so unhappy as the one who is continually torn between mother and father. If my parents had possibly remarried more congenial companions, I might have had two congenial sets of parents, instead of the place of unrest and strife in which I was forced to live. I should have had far more respect for my parents and we would all have been happier. I should have been better off even if I had been put in an orphan's home than to have been the chain which held two antagonistic people together.

A READER

Answer: There are as many sides to the divorce question as there are to human nature. No one view of the subject can take in every angle of it, no one judgment fit every case. When I urge misnamed people who have children not to take their freedom or their happiness at the expense of the hapless little creatures they have brought into the world, I am thinking of the many young lives that I have seen blighted by their parents' divorce.

May Suffer Physically

Often a divorce brings actual suffering on children. As long as their parents were together the man's earnings sufficed for a comfortable home, plenty of good food and clothing and an opportunity for the children to get a good education. But when they separate what was enough for one family is not enough for two. The meager alimony the husband pays and the scant earnings of a mother who has been trained to no gainful occupation, reduces them to dire poverty. Thousands of children pay with stunted bodies and minds, hunger and cold for their parents' quarrelling.

The inescapable truth is that children need a home, happiness and peace in which to grow up. They must have a sense of security. When you tear them up by the roots from the environment in which they belong you blight their whole lives. That is one side of the question and, on the other, is that which is stated so vividly and so pathetically by my correspondent. That is equally the truth. No good comes to the children in keeping a home together if it is a place of discord and strife, and a child is better off with only one parent than with two who tear it apart between them.

Dear Miss Dix: Why is it that boy's family treats his girl friends so differently from the way a girl's family treats her boy friends? When a boy begins going steady with a girl, if her family approves of him, they invite him to dinner, they make him welcome and try to be friendly with him. But a boy's family ignores the existence of his girl friend until they are actually engaged, and then they act as if she was a kidnaper who stole their son.

The Four Chaplains

When the troop transport, USS Dorchester, was torpedoed off Greenland in 1945, four young men had no life-belts. Four chaplains surrendered theirs to the young men. The chaplains were George Fox and Clark V. Polling, Protestants; John Washington, Catholic; and Alexander Doodie, a Jew.

but seldom are willing for their sons to marry. Hence the girls' parents speed up the wedding day and boys' parents shut their eyes to the coming catastrophe as long as they can.

Certainly it would save a lot of heartache on both sides if a boy's mother would invite his fiancée to the house and not only get acquainted with her but make her feel she would be a cherished member of the family even before marriage. Instead of letting her come into the family feeling that she was an alien and a stranger.

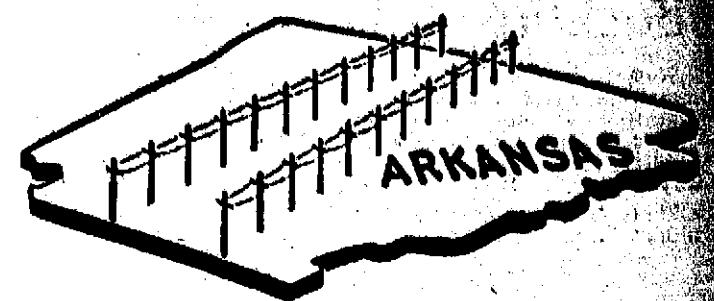

Dear Miss Dix: Which is the main factor for peace in the household, the husband or the wife?

Answer: The wife, because she is the one who makes the home, both physically and spiritually. The husband supplies the raw materials, the house, the food, the heat, the light out of which a home is made, but it is the wife who makes it a place of beauty, comfort and peace, or turns it into a squalid abode of discord and quarrelling.

41,500 MILES OF WIRE

Arkansas' telephone system is getting bigger and bigger and BIGGER.

Last year, 19,000 more telephone poles were put in service. As poles are usually spaced 40 to a mile, that's enough to build a line of telephone poles 475 miles long—or about twice across the state of Arkansas from north to south.

During the year, 41,500 miles of wire were added to Arkansas' telephone system to carry local and long distance calls—enough to circle the earth more than once and a half at the equator.

WE CAN'T STOP GROWING NOW

Telephone lines are defense lines. We must meet fully the service demands for defense, both military and industrial. Now, as never before, adequate telephone company earnings are important—for only adequate earnings can attract new investment money needed to keep on expanding the telephone system.

Taxpayers Need Sheet of Instruction

Editor's note: This is the twelfth of 12 stories explaining how to fill out the 1930 income tax return.

By JAMES MARLOW

Washington, Feb. 18. —(AP)—Do you even start to make out the 1930 income tax return on the 1040 long form, there is not a word to tell you what you must do without it.

That's the instruction sheet which goes with the 1040 long form. It's a 16-page government booklet explaining how to figure out the tax rate is on particular income.

And remember, before you send your return to the collector, attach to it a form W-2, the withholding certificate, given you by your employer for the taxes withheld from you.

You must pay in full any tax allowed when you file the return. If you write a check for the amount, make it payable to the internal revenue collector for your district.

If for any reason you were overpaid in 1930, indicate that on line 3. If you want a refund, indicate that under line 4. The collector will send it to you.

Under the law when husband and wife file a joint return, they file their income, each claiming his own. This device can make a lower tax bracket to make a joint return.

Under the law in a marriage, if the income of a couple can't be split, a joint return, sometimes when both had income, a couple will save by filing jointly.

Where husband and wife both had income it would be wise for them to figure out their tax both as a joint return and in separate returns, to see which gives them the smaller tax.

Here's an ABC of filing a return on the 1040 long form.

Jones is married, with two schoolboy sons. His income was $11,000. His wife had none. Before he starts filling out his return he must be sure of his deductions and exemptions.

Deductions — A married couple, filing jointly on the long form, are allowed a standard deduction of 10 per cent of their income up to a limit of $1,000 in deductions for things like medical expenses, charitable contributions, and so on. Whether or not their deductions amount to that much, they don't have to itemize.

If they want to claim more than that maximum $1,000, they must itemize their deductions in full.

It's different when a married couple files in the joint. If their income was $5,000 or more and one of them had no income and falls to file, the other, filing separately, gets a standard deduction of $500 and, no more. If he wants to claim more than $500, he must itemize.

It's still different for a single person who had 5,000 or more income. When he files his return he gets — like a married couple filing jointly — a standard deduction of 10 per cent of his income up to a maximum deduction of $1,000.

So return to Jones. He opens up his 1040 long form to page 3 and on line 1 enters his total income, $11,000. He's filing a joint return with his wife, who had no income. Since his deductions didn't actually amount to $1,000, but he allowed a standard deduction of $1,000, he enters that 1,000 on line 2.

Subtracting the 1,000 from his $11,000, he puts the result, 10,000, on line 3. That's called his net income.

On line 4 he must decide on his exemptions, since for each exemption he can deduct $500 from that net income of $10,000 before what's left can be taxed.

His wife had no income, so he claims 600 for her, plus $500 for himself, since everyone filing a return gets a $500 exemption. So far he has 1,200 in exemptions.

What of his two schoolboy sons? He's supporting them and sending them through school. Both worked during summer vacation and both earned money. They were dependent on him. Can he claim both as exemptions.

In his particular case he can claim an exemption for only one son. That one worked but earned less than $500. The other earned more than $500 but less than 600. No one has to file a return unless he earned 600 or more but no one who earned $500 or more

U. S. Relaxes Ban on Copper

Washington, Feb. 18. —(AP)—The government today shifted its ban on the use of copper for water systems in homes after March 1.

At the same time it banned or limited the use of copper after April 1 in more than 50 other products — among them coffee makers, hoods and farm freezers, walling, and refrigeration and air conditioning equipment.

The products in which copper is newly limited or banned are in addition to more than 200 announced previously.

The new copper controls were announced by the national production authority.

It was the lifting of the ban on the use of copper tubing for home water systems will permit many homes now under construction, which otherwise would not be completed, to be finished on schedule.

can be claimed as a dependent even though you contributed to more than half that person's support.)

So Jones winds up with $1,800 in exemptions: $500 for himself, $500 for his wife, $500 for one son. He enters the 1,800 on line 4, subtracts it from the net income of $10,000 on line 3, and winds up on line 5 with $8,200. That's the part of his income which can be taxed.

Since this is a joint return, skip to line 9. Jones splits his taxable income, $8,200, as it says to do on line 9, and writes the result there, $4,100.

Then he gets out the 16-page instruction sheet mentioned earlier, turns to page 10, and figures out the tax on $4,100. It's $808. He enters that on line 10.

Then he follows the instructions on line 11 item D and enters the result of that on line 11. It's $3.94. Subtracting line 11 $3.94 from line 10 $808, he writes the result, 772.06, on line 12.

Line 13 tells him to multiply the $772.06 on line 12 by two. The result, 1,544.12. He writes that on line 13. And that's his total tax for 1930.

Then he returns to page 1, being careful to list only one of his sons as an exemption, since he couldn't claim the other. And on page 1 he follows the questions, answering each as he comes to it.

Down on line 6 he lists the amount of tax he paid the government during 1930. Some of that tax he paid was withheld from him by his boss and some he paid in quarterly installments on his estimated tax.)

He finds he paid the government altogether only $1,450 in 1930 and still owes $94.12 since his total tax, explained above, is 1,544.12. So he sends the collector a check for $94.12, attached to form 1040, together with the form W-2, the withholding receipt given him by his boss for the tax withheld from him in 1930.

You may notice the figures in the formula for figuring your 1930 income tax on the 1040 long form are a little different from the formula figures you used on form 1040 last year in making your return on 1930 income. That's because the tax was raised a bit, starting in October.

You use the formula in the same way. It's just the figures which are a little different to take care of the tax increase.

Hadacol Helps New Mother

HADACOL Supplies Vitamins B1, B2, Nicotin and Iron in Which Her System Was Deficient

Mrs. Lottie F. Edwards, who lives at Route 1, Inverness, Miss., has two careers. . . she is a registered nurse and also a wife and mother of a new baby.

After her baby was born, Mrs. Edwards felt rundown, she had to do something to help overcome this condition so that she would feel up to her many duties.

Mrs. Edwards began taking HADACOL, and says it really helped her. Mrs. Edwards was suffering a deficiency of Vitamins B1, B2, Nicotin and Iron, which HADACOL contains.

Here is what Mrs. Edwards says: "I have taken one bottle of your HADACOL, and am now on my second bottle, and I can say I have really helped me. After my baby came, I didn't feel like walking around, I had headaches and was very nervous, and even one bottle has helped me so much. I want to keep on taking your wonderful HADACOL. I will certainly recommend it to all patients I come in contact with, for I think HADACOL is just the formula needed for Vitamin and Mineral deficiency."

Registered nurses, in increasing numbers, are showing a keen interest in HADACOL and in the results that are being secured with this great modern formula. Requests have been received from many of these nurses for analyses of bottles of HADACOL, and many of them indicated that they recommended the HADACOL formula to their patients.

HADACOL has helped folks of all ages when their condition was due to a deficiency of Vitamins B1, B2, Nicotin and Iron, elements which are contained in HADACOL.

Bootleggers Feared by Tax Writers

Washington, Feb. 18. —(AP)—House tax writers sought advice today on how a big boost in liquor taxes can be put into effect without touching off an era of bootlegging and rum-running.

Some members of the house ways and means committee have said they fear a widespread increase in illicit liquor-making and sales if Secretary of the Treasury Snyder's tax plans are adopted.

Chairman Doughton (D-Nc) said the enforcement problem was the reason for calling Deputy Commissioner Carroll Menley of the government's alcohol tax unit for testimony today.

"Heavier liquor taxes may very likely make collections much more difficult to enforce," Doughton said. "I think it will depend on how closely we can keep after the moonshiners. It may be that we will have to have a great many more enforcement officers."

Snyder has proposed boosting the tax on whiskey from $9 to $12 a gallon, on beer from 8 to 12 a barrel, and various increases for types of wines. The secretary estimated the added levies would raise $710,000,000 toward the administration's $10,500,000,000 tax goal.

Rep. Dingell (D-Mich) is among in St. Louis, Mo. She was accompanied home by her little grandson, Rickey.

Mr. and Mrs. Fado Cravens Jr., have returned to Fort Smith after being the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Tom Bemis.

Mrs. Hubert Whitaker has returned from a visit with her daughter, Mrs. George Meyers, and family.

An arrangement of red snap-committee members feeling that higher liquor taxes will encourage moonshiners, bootleggers and smugglers — on the theory tax evasions become all the more lucrative.

"This kind of tax is going to stimulate bathtub gin again," he protested. "It'll bring back the conditions we had under prohibition."

Dingell and Rep. Eberhart (D-Pa), another committee member, have mentioned the possibility of taxing soda water and other soft drinks. This was not among Snyder's recommendations. But he said such a tax at a penny a bottle would bring in about $280,000,000 a year.

A Republican committee member, Rep. Keane of New Jersey, recalled data submitted to the committee that the cost of producing legitimate whiskey is only about 55 or 60 cents a gallon. He noted that means the proposed tax is more than 20 times the cost of the product.

THEODORE THERM'S WORKSHOP

THEODORE THERM'S WORKSHOP

Terms of natural gas, millions of them each day, are flowing through the Inch Lines in your county to fuel the double needs of industry: production for consumers at home—production for the armed forces striving to restore peace abroad.

Theodore Therm is working overtime these days because his energy, so desirable in the home, is truly essential in hundreds of industrial processes. Natural gas is needed to make everything from parts for tanks and radar to glass for babies' bottles.

Texas Eastern's pipe lines are operating at all-time high capacity to meet the needs of the nation for more energy. The efforts we are making are part of our duty as a community citizen.

*A Therm is equal to about 95 cubic feet of natural gas—the amount needed to do a day's cooking and water heating for the average family.
